George Audrew Atzerott was born in the kingdom of Prussia in 1835, and came to this country with his parents in 1844. He arrived at Baltimore, in which place he resided with his family for about one year, when, with his parents, he moved to West-moreland county, Va. His father farmed and carried on his business, that of a black-smith, at the Court House. Atzerott was placed as an appretice to the coach-making business at the Court House, where he learned the painting branch. He remained at the Court House, where he learned the painting branch. He remained at the Court House until 1856, when he went to Washington and worked for Young, and also for Mr. Dermott, well-known coach-makers.

In 1857 he joine I his brother in the coach making business at Port Tobacco. This continued for four years, when the firm was dissolved. After this he carried on painting in Port Tobacco, until last fall, when he went with John II, Surratt and a man named Herline. Surratt induced him to join in the conspiracy for abducting the President. Atzerott's knowledge of men and the computer in the vicinity of Port Tobacco, and, in fact, of all the counties bordering on the Potomac gave to the conspirators a valuable assistant. He was well acquainted with Harrold, whom he was not long in finding out, and who was also engaged in the conspiracy. Surratt went several times to Port Tobacco, and often sent to Atzerott to come to Washington, where he was known come to Washington, where he was known to many as well as in Port Tobacco, and locked upon as a very weak-minded man was regarded as a very harmless and siffy fellow. Surratt introduced Atzerott to Booth who feasted him and furnished him with horses, the horse being held in the name of Surratt, who appeared to be the principal in the absence of Booth. The first meeting of all the conspirators actually engaged was at a saloon in Pennsylvania avenue, called Geteer's. At this meeting O'Laughlin, Arnold, Booth, Surratt, Harrold and Atzerott were present. The first attempt to abduct the President was to be on the Seventh street road. This was to be about the middle of March, when they expected the President to visit a camp. O Laughlin, Arnold President to visit a camp. O Laughlin, Arnold President to visit a camp. The boat was capable of carry-ing lifecen men, and was a large flat bot-tomed batteau, painted lead color, which had been bought for the purpose by Booth from two men named Branner and Smoot. This plan failed, the President not coming as desired. Harrold went next morning to Washington. All things remained quiet for some time after this. Booth went North, Arnold and O'Laughlin to Balti-more; Payne, or Wood, left also for New A man named Howell was about this time arrested. This alarmed Surratt, and he left with Mrs. Slater for the North. This was about the first of April. The next plan was to visit the theater on the night the President was expected to be there. It was arranged that Surratt and Booth were to go to the box; Arnold, O'Laughlin and Payne were to act some important part in getting him out; Harrold and Atzerott were to was to be secured to put out the gas; Booth represented that the best assistant he had was an actor. A rope, which was prepared and to be at Keyd's, was to be stretched across the road to impede the cavalry in the pursuit. The route at this time was the same as before, except that they was to cross the Eastern Branch bridge.

By the same as before, except that they was to cross the Eastern Branch bridge. The whole affair failed, and Booth said, "It is all up," and spoke of going to Richmond and opening a theatre, and promised Atzerott employment in it in some capacity. Atzerott was waiting for Booth to arrange his going to Richmond. When the affair was renewed again he had taken a room at the Kirkwood House. Harrold called on him and left his knife, pistol and coat in the room, and told him Booth wished to see him at the Herndon House, to place he repaired in company with Harrold. This was in the evening about six o'clock. We there met Booth and Payne. Booth told Atgerott, "You must kill Johnson."demurred, when Booth replied, "Harrold has more courage; he will do it go get your horses; what will become o Atzerott and Harrold went down Ninth street together. Atzerott said to Harrold, "We must not disturb Mr. Harrold laughed, and wanted the key of the room. It was refused by Atzerott, who expressed himself as fearful that harm would be done Mr. Johnson.

Harrold left to go and see Booth, and At-zerott went to the Oyster Bay. Harrold came after him, and said Booth wanted to see him. Atzerott did not return to the Kirkwood House that night. One of Booth's plans to obtain an en-trance to the Secretary of State's house was an invention which, if successful, would have involved others in his foul acts. had made the acquaintance of a woman of strong Southern feelings, living not far from the Secretary's house, who was to make the acquaintance of a servant who was to be introduced to Booth, and by this means he would learn something of the location of the rooms, &c. As far as known, it failed. Booth was well acquainted with Mudd, and had latters of introduction to him. Booth told Atzerett, about two weeks be-fore the murder, that he had sent provisions and liquor to Dr. Mudd's house for the supply of the party on their way to Rich-mond with the President. Booth told Atzerott that Surratt was in the city. Atzerott did not see Booth after leaving him at the Herndon House, and he many lim at the Herndon House, and he roamed about that past ten o clock, while passing up the avenue. The cavairy were rushing by at the time in pursuit. He threw away his knife that night, and parted with his pistol next morning to a friend in Georgetown. Atzeroit had nothing to say at any of the former meetings. He knew nothing about the rope found with Spangler. He believed Spangler innocent, as far as he knew.—Booth, when applied to for money, would remark that he had money in New York, and would get some. At one time in the pring or late in winter, Mrs. Slater, Mrs. Surratt, John Surratt and a Major Barron, formerly of the rebel army, left Washings ton together. They got horses from Howard's. Mrs. Surratt stopped at Surratts ville; the others went to the Potomac, Major Barron returned. He did not think Barron had anything to do with the conspiracy, although he was formerly in the conspiracy and the proposed stayle and toothaches, and alteriating the proposed stayle and toot Barron had anything to do with the con-spiracy, although he was formerly in the a tolerably healthy condition.

Consumption at that time was thought to be an incurable disease, by every one, physicians as well as those who were unlearned in medicine—especially such case as were reduced to the condition I was in. This induced many people to believe my recovery only temporary. I now prepared and gave the medicines to consumptives for some time, and made many wounderful cures; and the demand increased so rapidly that I determined to offer them to the public, and devote my undivided attention to lung diseases. In truth, I was next to forced to it, for people would send for me far and near, to ascertain whether their cases were like mine. For many years, in conjunction with my prin-

The Scawced Tonic is a stimulant, and none other is required when it is used. It is pure & pleasant; no bad effects like when using Bourbon whisky, which disorders the stomach torpors the liver, locks up all the secretions, turns the blood into water, dropsy sets in, and the patient dies suddenly.

Bourbon whisky is recommended now-a-days by almost every physician. Many patients that visit my rooms, both male and female, are stapfied with this poison. The relief is temporary. If they cough they take a little whisky; if they cough they take a little whisky; if they cannot alsee, they take a little whisky, and they go on in this way, requiring more and more until they are bloated up, and imagine they are getting fleshy. The stomach, liver and algestive powers are completely destroyed, and lose their appetite for food. No one was ever cured of consumption by this process, where cavitles have been formed in the lungs. A little stimulant is frequently beneficial to consumptives, such as pure brandy or good wine; in many cases London porter or brown stom in moderate quantities; but Bourbon whisky hastens on instead of curing consumption.

The Seaweed Tonic produces lasting results,
